- Innovative Communication System is at the right place at the right time -

CALGARY, AB - (September 5, 2006) - Grayling Wireless USA, Inc. (Pink Sheets: GRYW) announced today that their ClearCalm™ Advantage System is to be featured on World Business Review, hosted by former US Secretary of State General Alexander Haig.

Airing on September 10, 2006 on CNBC (as a paid program) Grayling CEO Jeff Love shared that September 10th has an emotional connection for him and the entire Grayling family "Our first contract engineers began work on the ClearCalm project on September 10, 2001 – the very next day the importance of our work was brought into clear focus. Five years later we are bringing ClearCalm to the world".

Mr. Love continued to describe the importance of this innovative technology "The ClearCalm™ Advantage gives firefighters and other first responders the ability to enter a scene with confidence that they are going to be able to communicate with each other clearly and effectively. Most importantly ClearCalm™ Advantage further assists our first responders by reducing their stress levels while attending emergency situations as they are able to speak to their team members and their command structure in a clear, concise way the first time, eliminating the need to repeat instructions. We made a commitment to our earliest shareholders, many of whom are professional firefighters that we will deliver this system to the men and women who risk their lives everyday helping others. "
